It's a whole new ball game here at Howard Johnson.

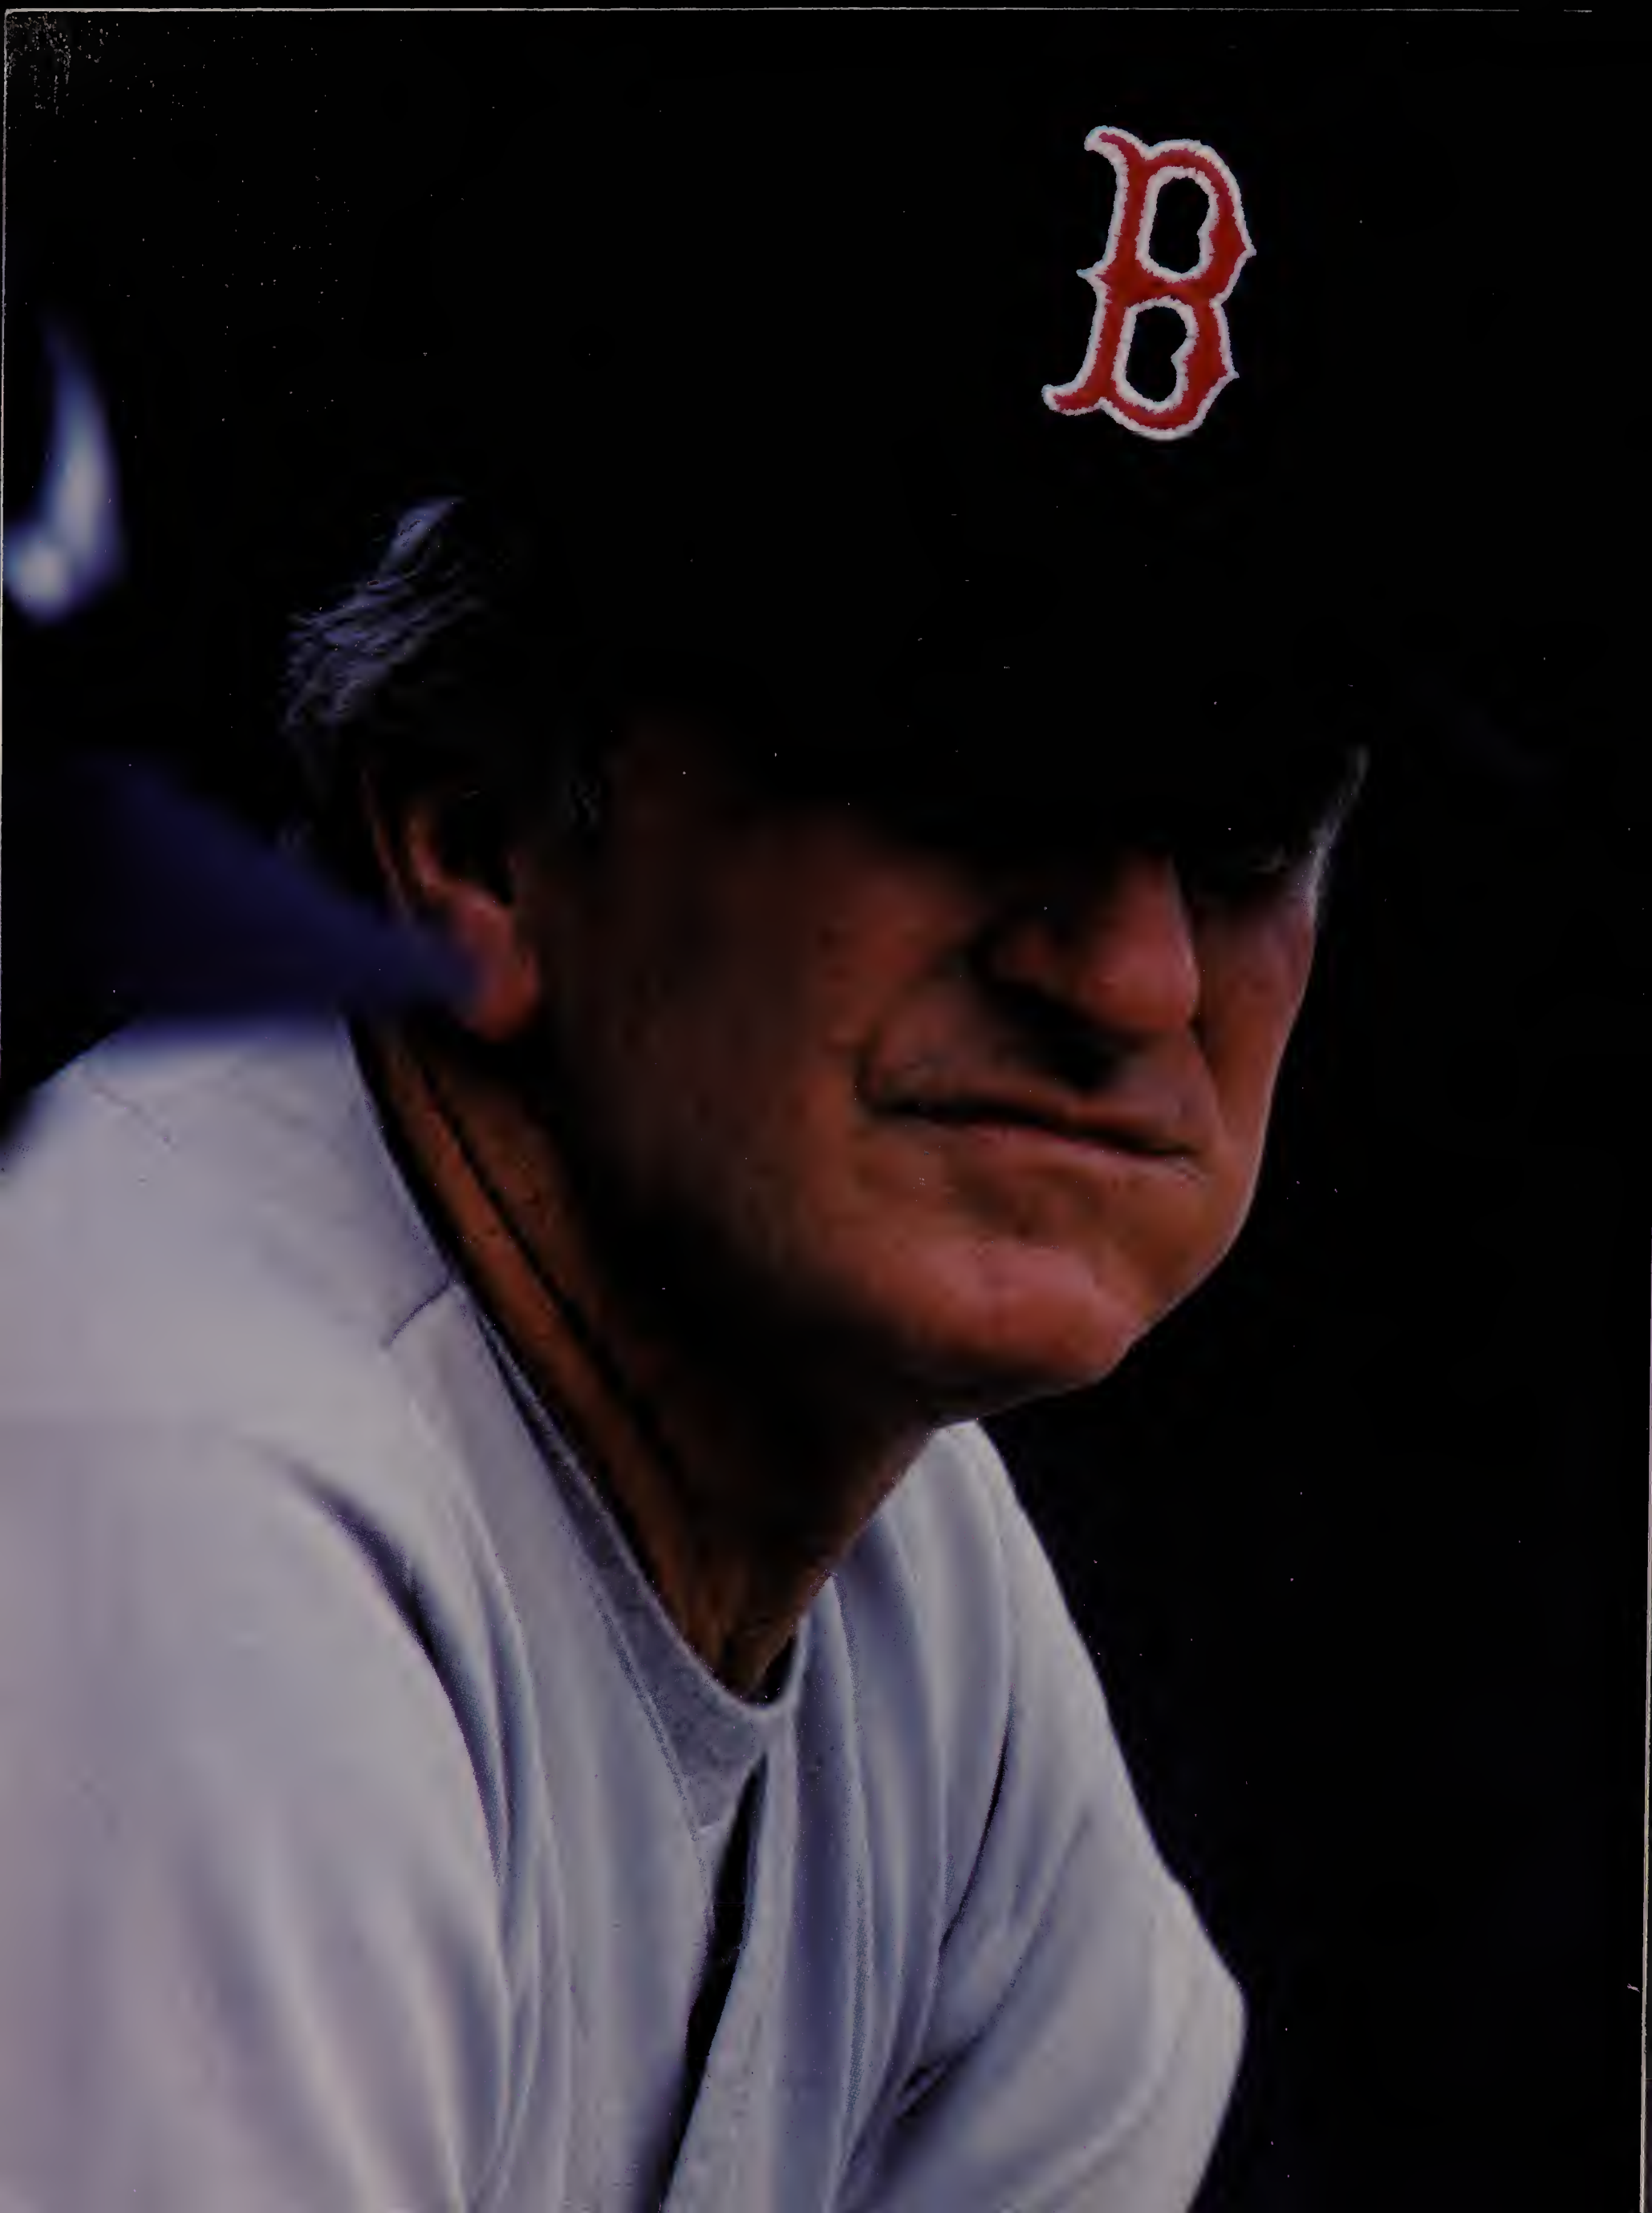

We're fielding a dazzling team of new and revitalized hotels and lodges for you to play and work at. They're more inviting, more comfortable, more businesslike than ever before. And we have a savvy new management team running our operations right here in Boston. But some things haven't changed. The home territory of Red Sox fans has been home base for us for almost 60 years. And the same feeling of warmth and friendliness, the same sense of real value for your money that made Howard Johnson famous still prevail. We think you'll agree the combination is unbeatable. For feeling at home on the road at almost 500 locations across the U.S.A.

A Good Deal. And A Good Deal More.<sup>SM</sup>

Meet the Manager

by Gary Santaniello

John Francis McNamara has been in baseball continuously since 1951 (excluding two years of military service), but it took Ralph Houk's unexpected retirement for this man to become perfectly matched with his working environment. He grew up a Red Sox fan in post-Depression Sacramento, where if he wasn't listening to games ("TV was still a new industry"), he was attending them at Edmonds Park. Even today McNamara is still able to name players whose exploits he listened to on the Mutual "Game of the Day" broadcasts, "Charlie Wagner was their catcher."

McNamara not only understands baseball, he also appreciates it—its rhythm, its intricacies, its influence on people. The Red Sox are a baseball organization, not some subsidiary of Coca-Cola or a tax writeoff for a carpetbagging businessman. They play in a ballpark that still has nooks and crannies, meticulously groomed grass, and passionate fans. "After years of managing in stadiums," said McNamara, who has worked under the golden arches in San Diego, in the salad bowl in Cincinnati, and next to Disneyland in Anaheim, "it'll be nice to be back in a park."

Next to the swanboat operators in the Boston Public Garden, McNamara may hold the most highly visible summer job in Boston. Although he understands the importance of his position, he is not affected by it. Therefore, it's fitting that McNamara is finally managing in the major league city farthest from Hollywood.

"I find it difficult to talk about myself, and I don't take easily to flattery and compliments. I enjoy what I'm doing, but I'm not impressed with what I do. God has been very good to me. I've been able to make a living at something I totally enjoy doing."

When Don Zimmer managed the Red Sox, he liked to proudly point out that he never held a job outside of baseball. Similarly, McNamara's non-baseball resume, since he signed with the Cardinals in 1951, could easily fit on a business card.

"From the time I was a little kid, I wanted to be a ballplayer, to play in the major leagues," he said. He reached the major leagues in 1968 as a coach with Oakland, over a decade after realizing he wasn't going to make it as a catcher. "I wasn't big as catchers went," said McNamara, who is 5'10", 175, "and my bat wasn't going to get me there."

After three undistinguished years in the minors, he spent two years in Korea. His 14-year minor league average was .239 with seven home runs in 3,366 at-bats. When his civilian life resumed, the Cards gave him a portion of his bonus and then released him. He got a job with Lewiston, an independent ballclub, but soon thereafter "saw my days as a player were numbered and started thinking about getting an education and finishing college in the off-season. You made decent money in the Coast League in those days."

Then came what McNamara called "the biggest break I've received." The Lewiston manager quit during the 1958 season, and although McNamara was only a year and a half away from his degree, he took the job as a 26-year-old player-manager (and continued playing until 1967). He saw this opportunity as "a way of staying in the game and getting a chance to make the majors."

The actual break came in 1960, when the Kansas City Athletics entered into a limited working agreement with Lewiston. When KC made it a full agreement a year later, McNamara embarked on a fruitful 10-year association with the Kansas City organization.

With the Athletics, McNamara worked with such people as Whitey Herzog, Bobby Hoffman, and Tom Giordano, part of the talented organization put together by Hank Peters. And that was where McNamara first became acquainted with the backup catcher, Haywood Sullivan, who would later become part-owner of the Red Sox and eventually hire McNamara as the Red Sox' 36th manager.

McNamara rose through the minor league managing ranks, where he influenced four players who would become major league managers—Doug Rader, Tony LaRussa, Pat Corrales, and Rene Lachemann. After directing consecutive pennant-winning clubs in the Southern League (with such players as Reggie Jackson, Rollie Fingers, Joe Rudi, and Rick Monday), he was named to the A's coaching staff in 1968. When Oakland manager Hank Bauer was fired (with Oakland in second place and 13 games left in the 1969 season), McNamara became a major league manager at age 37.

"I honestly feel you evolve as a manager. I managed nine years in the minors, from Class B ball to Triple A, and every year I had to adjust to the personnel. I've always believed in speed, pitching, and defense, because even if you don't have any power, you can win if you have those three. I received a well-rounded education in the Athletics organization, and what I learned still holds true."

McNamara took Oakland to the brink of the division title in 1970 as the Athletics won a franchise-record 89 games, but was fired by the temperamental Charlie Finley following the season. Dick Williams took over and the A's went on to four straight division titles and three world championships.

His second opportunity to manage came in 1974 with San Diego, following three years as a coach for San Francisco. He presided over three second-division finishes—the Padres won a franchise-record number of games in 1975 (71) and 1976 (73)—before being replaced 48 games into the 1977 season.

He spent 1978 as a coach with the Angels. When the Reds let Sparky Anderson go, following five division championships and three second-place finishes in nine years, McNamara took over.

The Reds won 90 games and the N.L. West in 1979, 89 games and finished third in 1980, and ended the strike season in 1981 with the best overall record in baseball. However, when the Reds refused to pay George Foster and Ken Griffey, and unloaded them for 70 cents on the dollar, McNamara was made the scapegoat when the Reds foundered in 1982.

As testimony to the managerial ability others readily recognized, and his keen eye for talent (it was McNamara who turned Fingers into a reliever in 1969 and did the same with the Reds' Tom Hume in 1979), he wasn't jobless for long. He was hired as manager in 1983 by the Angels, a job he walked away from following two years of frustration. "It was time for a change," he said. Nine days after leaving Anaheim, he was reunited with Sullivan in Boston, where a city, a ballpark, and an organization McNamara truly appreciates awaited him.

"I'm not one to walk in and attempt to change things that have been successful. It was the same way in Cincinnati. If I can help, I will, but I can't see the need for any overhaul here."

Even more than his ability to handle teams, McNamara has a reputation for handling people, which he sees as the essence of his job. "I don't think it takes any talent to be nice to people, and all you expect in return is for players to hustle and give their all. You can give yourself away by being soft, but there are ways I believe people should be handled. There's a sign I used to have in my office — 'To handle yourself, use your head; to handle others, use your heart.'"

Such principles are what you'd expect from someone who still remembers what it's like to cut someone "and the only place he has to go is home. To this day, I don't envy making the final cuts. It's the worst part of the job. I never forgot what it was like for me as a minor leaguer. But somewhere along the line you hope they respect you for being honest."

Yet McNamara knows what it takes to do his job: "... to find out what makes a player tick and to get him to maximize his ability. I think it's a little more difficult today because society has changed since I started playing. The players are different, the lifestyle is different, the music is different, the dress is different. You have to be involved with the players, but it's a fine line. You can't be too close to them."

What McNamara does remain close to is the pulse of the game that took him from Sacramento, where he grew up with baseball and little else, because "we didn't have that many other things to do," to Boston and a job where there's little else he would rather do.

Gary Santaniello, who used to cover the Red Sox for the Worcester Telegram, is now covering the Tigers for the Detroit Free Press.

The Coaches

Walter Hriniak      Dugout/Hitting Coach      33

Walter has a new role in 1985. After eight years as the bullpen coach, he moved into the dugout while continuing as a hitting coach. Before joining the Red Sox in 1977, Hriniak put in 16 years as a player, coach, and minor league manager. He was an outstanding football, hockey, and baseball player at Natick (MA) High School. Walter conducts a hitting school for several weeks in the off-season. His 13-year pro career included two years with the Atlanta Braves and San Diego Padres.

Rene Lachemann      Third Base Coach      36

Rene is coaching third base this year after managing the Milwaukee Brewers in 1984 and the Seattle Mariners from 1981-83. He signed with the Kansas City A's in 1964. His major league manager in 1965 with the A's was Haywood Sullivan, and in 1966 he played for John McNamara in the minors. Lachemann managed in the Oakland system before being hired by Lou Gorman to manage Seattle's Triple A team in 1977. His older brother Marcel is pitching coach for the California Angels.

Bill Fischer      Pitching Coach      34

Fischer is serving as John McNamara's pitching coach for the second time. He worked with McNamara at Cincinnati from 1979-82, and also spent 1983 with the Reds after McNamara left to manage the California Angels. Fischer was signed by the Chicago White Sox in 1948 and had a 20-year pitching career that included nine major league seasons with Detroit, Washington, the Kansas City A's, and Minnesota. He holds the major league record for most consecutive innings without giving up a walk, 84.1.

Joe Morgan      First Base Coach      35

Morgan joined the Red Sox organization in 1974. He managed Triple A Pawtucket from 1974-82 and was a scout the past two years. Last fall he was named the club's first base coach. Joe began his managerial career in the Pittsburgh system after a 15-year pro playing career that included major league duty with the Milwaukee Braves, Kansas City A's, Philadelphia Phillies, St. Louis Cardinals, and Cleveland Indians. Joe graduated from Walpole (MA) High School and Boston College, and signed with the Boston Braves organization in 1952.

Tony Torchia      Bullpen Coach      32

Tony is another newcomer to the coaching staff. However, this is Torchia's 23rd season in the Red Sox system as a player, coach, and manager. In 1983-84 he managed at Pawtucket and led the PawSox to the International League championship last summer. Torchia originally signed with the Los Angeles Dodgers but was drafted by the Red Sox in 1962. He graduated from North Miami High School and received a Masters degree in Education from Florida Atlantic University.

JIM RICE

(Most memorable moment)

When I won the MVP in 1978.

(Who has inspired you the most in your career)

My mentor, whether he knows it or not, is Johnny Pesky.

(What advice would you give to someone seeking a career in pro baseball)

Work hard but be prepared to go on to something else if you don't succeed in baseball. If you do make it, always be willing to accept advice and constructive criticism.

(What do you enjoy most about baseball)

The travel, the diversity of people I meet, the never-ending thrill I get when I hit a home run or clutch hit, and of course, the money.

(Plans after baseball)

Travel, play golf, and open a business in Anderson, SC with my wife, Corine.

Jim Rice

BOB STANLEY

(Who has inspired you the most in your career)

My wife and kids. They help me get through in bad times, and they make me work as hard as I can because the better I do, the more fun we have.

(Plans after baseball)

Coach little children and teach them what I have learned from playing pro baseball. Work with both handicapped and sick children, and try to make their lives a little easier. And finally, establish my own business.

Bob Stanley

DWIGHT EVANS

(Most memorable moment)

The whole experience of playing in the 1975 American League Playoffs and then the World Series against the Reds. The memories will last a lifetime.

(What do you enjoy most about baseball)

Winning—everybody has fun when you win. It's a great feeling because you are playing against many great athletes.

Dwight Evans

DENNIS BOYD

(Who has inspired you the most in your career)

My father, Willie James Boyd, Sr.

(What advice would you give to someone seeking a career in pro baseball)

It's very hard to succeed in pro baseball. The odds are against your making the majors.

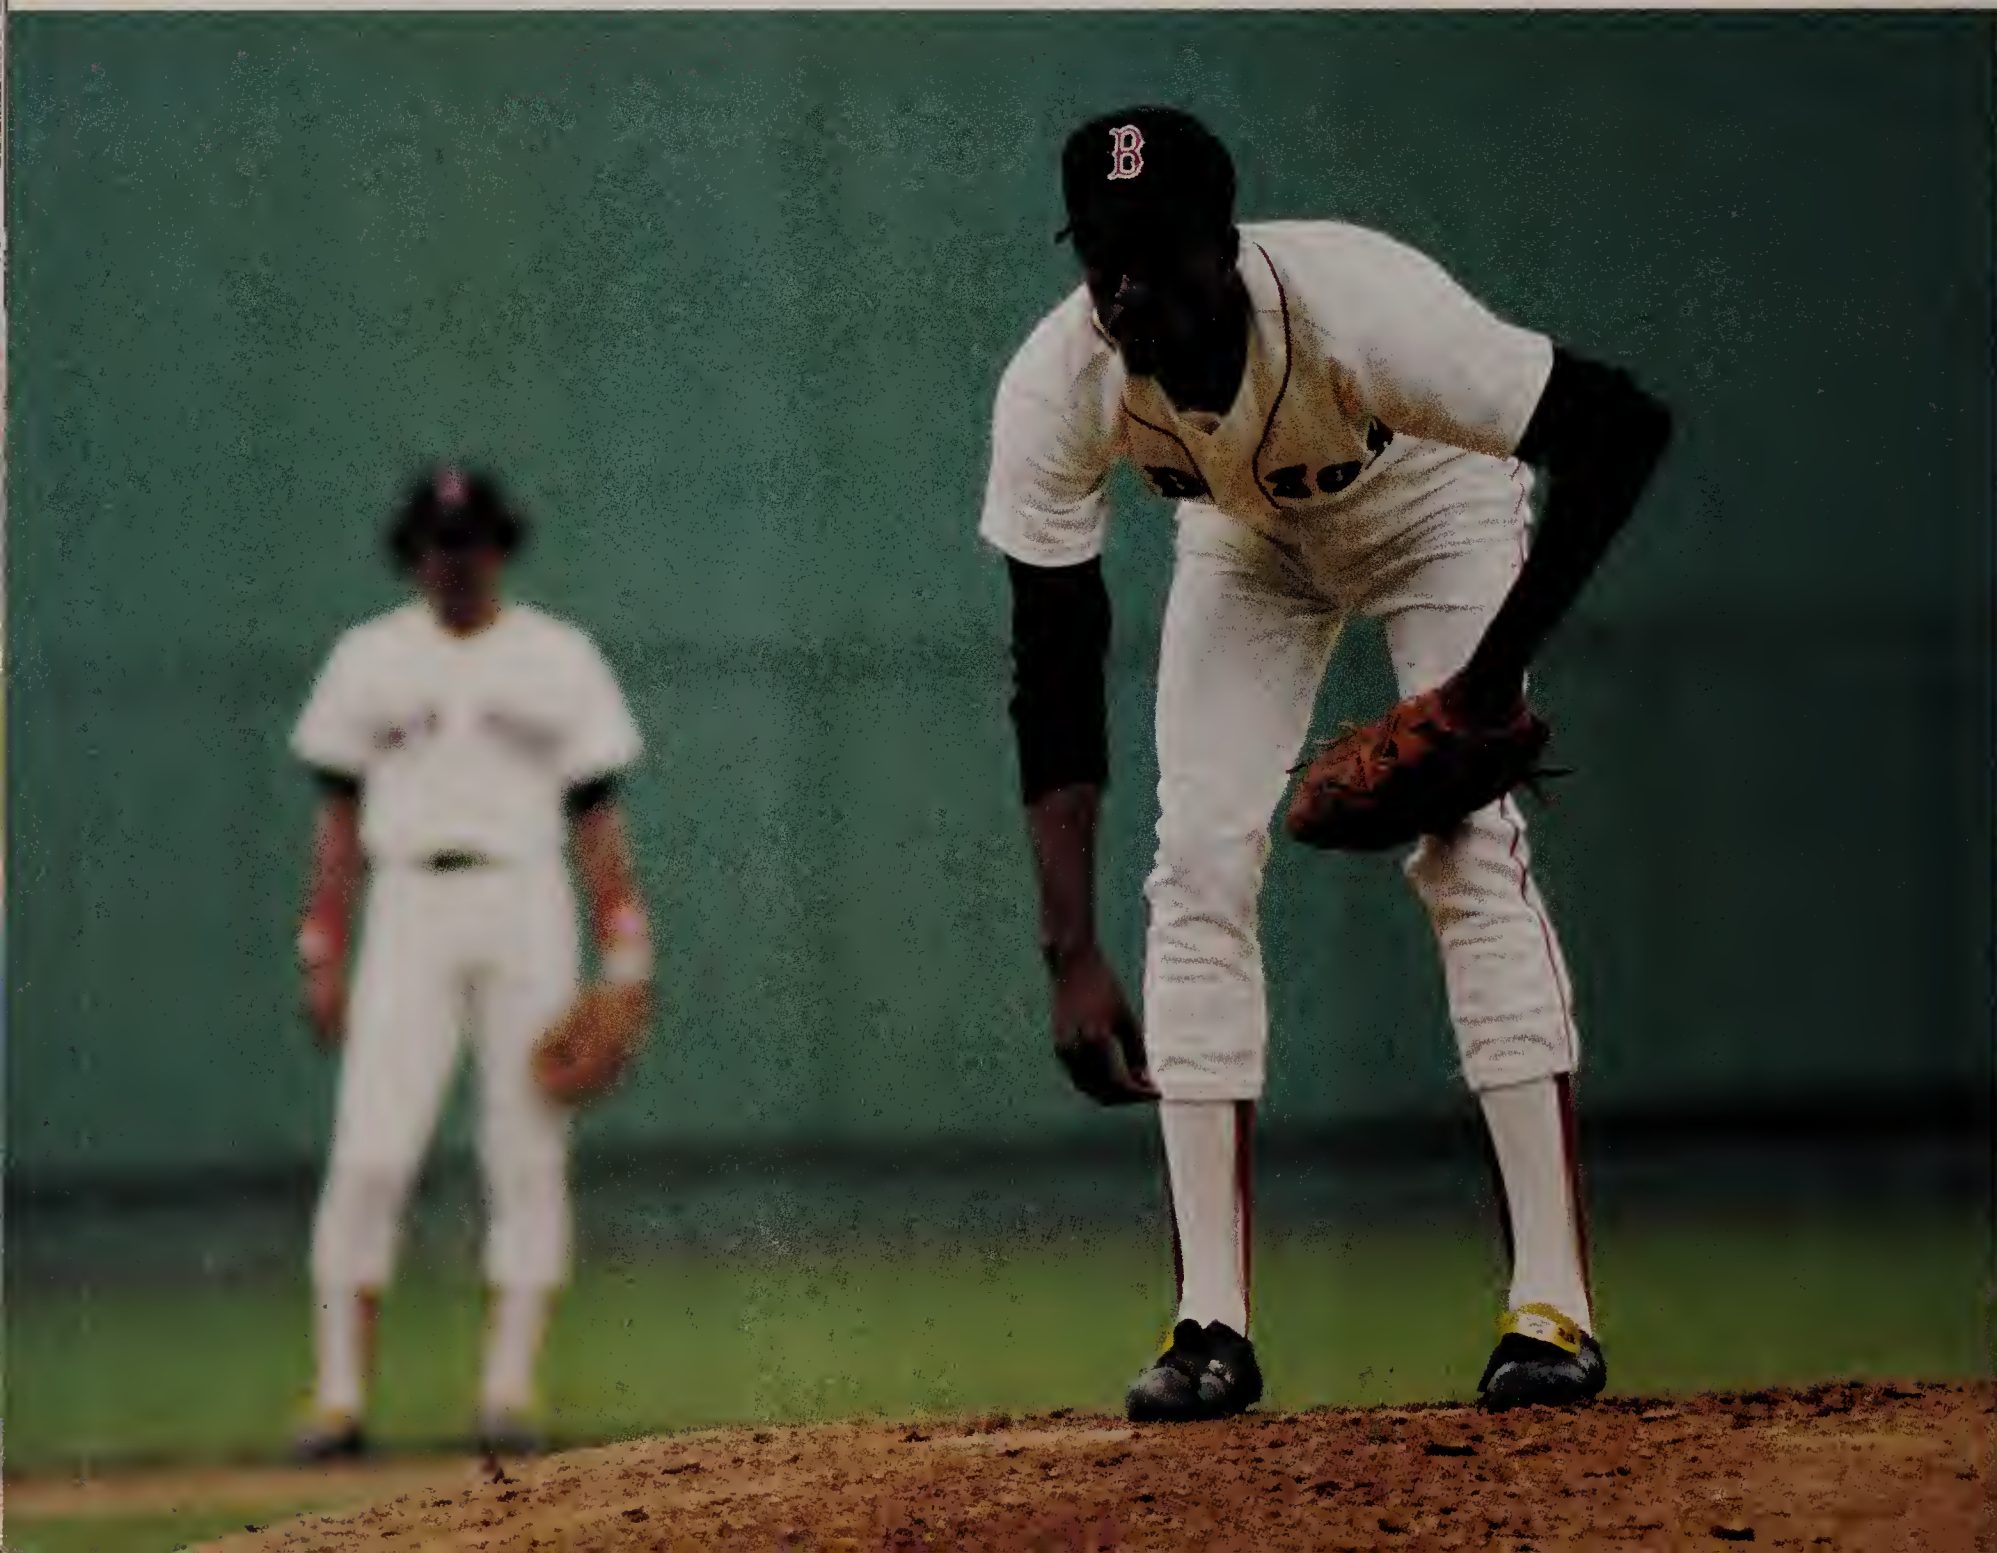

If given the chance, take it. It's a beautiful life, but have something to fall back on.

(Plans after baseball)

I would like to become president of my father's logging company which spreads out over three states — Mississippi, Louisiana, and Alabama.

WADE BOGGS

My most memorable moment has to be when I found out that I would be making that plane trip to Chicago after spring training was over in '82. I was in the big leagues — my dream had come true.

(What advice would you give to someone seeking a career in pro baseball)

The main thing in professional sports is never give up. As long as you still love the game and you still have that dream of being a major league ballplayer, then give it your all.

Wade Boggs

MIKE EASLER

One of my most memorable moments in my big-league career was my very first game at Fenway Park in 1984. I believe I went 4–5 with a double and 3 singles. My first at bat I hit the first pitch off the famous green monster. From that day on, I knew I would love Fenway Park. That game was against the now World Champion Detroit Tigers.

I must say, my father has been a major influence on my career. From the days I played Little League, he has been my number one fan, also my number one critic. Also, my heavenly Father is the one I owe my whole career to. God has given me all the talents I so humbly possess.

ROGER CLEMENS

(Most memorable moment)

My (15-strikeout) Kansas City game was my most memorable. All the excitement was there and the crowd was behind me 100 percent. About the sixth inning, I realized how many strikeouts I had and I started to try for more. Al (Nipper) called to my attention that people were putting Ks on the right field wall. During the last inning, I didn't know I had a chance to tie the record (17). I dedicated the game to my wife, Debbie.

(What do you enjoy most about baseball)

I like being able to perform and being a pitcher I get to do that. It takes talent, and I feel very fortunate to be out there. It's an opportunity other people never have. There's nothing like being in the major leagues.

PITCHER 21

BILL BUCKNER

Most of my memorable moments in baseball have been in situations involving fan reaction. One such situation was a standing ovation in Wrigley Field after my 200th hit in my last at bat of the season. Another memorable moment was my first at bat in Comiskey Park where I received a nice ovation from the fans of Chicago. Getting my 100th RBI and winning the batting title were also big thrills for me.

My advice to a young aspiring athlete would simply be to get the most out of your abilities. You need to work a little harder than your teammates who have the same amount of ability. Today's player not only needs a lot of time on the field working on mechanics, but also must improve physical stature with weight training and quickness drills. Most of all, today's athlete must be willing to listen and learn.

Bill Buckner

BOBBY OJEDA

(Who has inspired you the most in your career)

My dad; he always led me, never pushed me.

(What advice would you give to someone seeking a career in pro baseball)

Work hard, get the most out of your talents, and don't try to live up to or down to others' expectations of what you can do.

Bobby Ojeda

PITCHER 19

RICH GEDMAN

(Most memorable moment)

My most memorable moment was when I caught Dennis Eckersley's one-hitter on my birthday in Toronto in September, 1980. I drove in an important run with a single and hurt my wrist sliding into second base. It was the first game I started as a catcher in the major leagues.

(What do you enjoy most about baseball)

The competition and the challenge of the pitcher vs. the hitter.

Rich Gedman

BRUCE HURST

(Who has inspired you the most in your career)

The first person to really help me was my coach from Senior Little League through high school, Kent Garrett. He spent a lot of hours away from his work to help my pitching. The second was Mike Roarke, my pitching coach in Pawtucket, who refined my pitching mechanics and gave me a better understanding of them. I give them both a lot of credit for getting me to the big leagues.

(What do you enjoy most about baseball)

I enjoy the competition the most. I also enjoy playing with and against the best players in the game, the friendships I've made, and the places that I've seen. It's a great way to earn a living.

Bruce Hurst

PITCHER 47

MARTY BARRETT

I think the most memorable moment of my career was my first day of big-league camp in 1982. When I put on my uniform and sat down waiting for our first clubhouse meeting, I looked around at guys like Jim Rice, Dwight Evans, Carl Yastrzemski, Tony Perez, and couldn't believe that I had made it this far. It was awesome.

(Who has inspired you the most in your career)

Without even thinking about it, I would say my mom and dad. Growing up with five brothers and one sister, I realized they couldn't devote all their attention to me, but when I did need some advice, solutions to problems, or encouragement, they were always there for me. I think my father gave me the best advice of all about baseball when he said, "Marty, don't ever take baseball for granted, because about the time you do it'll knock you back on your butt."

AL NIPPER

My most memorable moment was when I got my first big-league win in the majors pitching Yaz' last game of his career. It was really such a special day for me with all the media attention on Yaz, winning that game, and getting that final out. I had Yaz sign the ball for me. It was a great treat with a packed house.

(Who has inspired you the most in your career)

Rac Slider, now manager of the Pawtucket Red Sox, was the manager at Winter Haven when I got there. He taught me a lot about winning, dedication, having that desire to excel, and really work hard. He demands respect, and he gets respect in return. I trust his advice.

SHORTSTOP 41*JACKIE GUTIERREZ

(What advice would you give to someone seeking a career in pro baseball)

Always give it all you have. Be patient and never give up. Things won't always go well for you so learn to take the bad with the good. Most of all, always be the same person. Don't change because everything is working out right for it can turn around just as fast.

(What do you enjoy most about baseball)

The joy of competing against the best in the world, traveling and meeting people, and, basically, the game itself.

Jackie Gutierrez

MARK CLEAR

(Most memorable moment)

Winning the division title with California in 1979.

(Who has inspired you the most in your career)

REID NICHOLS

(What advice would you give to someone seeking a career in pro baseball)

Set personal standards and values. Decide what is right and what is wrong, and live by it. Then take your dream and go for it.

(Plans after baseball)

Teach young baseball players the things I have learned about the game from my own experiences, and some of the techniques I have learned from watching and listening to some of the great players. Basing instructions on the Judeo-Christian ethic, students will hopefully learn that life is more than baseball.

DAVE STAPLETON

My most memorable moment was my first major league game. Playing at Fenway Park, with my parents there, I hit a double my third at bat and got a standing ovation from approximately 30,000 people. It was as if they were saying, "Welcome to Fenway." I'll never forget it.

(Who has inspired you the most in your career)

Without a doubt, my mother and father. From the day my father was my Little League coach through my four years of college, they never missed a game. Now they have a satellite antenna so they can watch me play with the Red Sox anywhere in the country where the game is telecast.

Dave Stapleton

BRUCE KISON

My most memorable moment would have to be pitching as a rookie in the 1971 World Series against Baltimore. In the 4th game, I entered the first inning in relief and pitched through the seventh, giving up one hit and no runs. We won the game 4-3, and the Series in seven games.

One thing I enjoy about baseball is the camaraderie that develops within a team. I think it's very important to know your teammates and learn what makes each one tick.

SECOND BASEMAN

JERRY REMY

(Most memorable moment)
My first major league game, Opening Day, 1975 for the Angels, and my first hit in that game. Also, the 1978 playoff game vs. the Yankees.

(Who has inspired you the most in your career)

Kenny Myers, a California Angels' minor league coach. Grover Reisinger, an Angels' coach, in my first major league season. Also, Walt Hriniak for getting the very most out of me.

STEVE CRAWFORD

(Most memorable moment)

Making the big leagues and pitching in my first game, also my first major league win and save.

(Who has inspired you the most in your career)

Steve Crawford

3 OUTFIELDER

RICK MILLER

(Most memorable moment)

It came after a loss, believe it or not. Baltimore had just beaten us for the pennant in Anaheim in 1979. Our team was sitting in the clubhouse when we were summoned onto the field by the chants of our avid fans for about 10 minutes. This salute was a great ending to an otherwise successful season.

ED JURAK

In 1982, my first major league year, I was playing centerfield in a home game against the Texas Rangers. Boston was losing 5-0. In later innings we rallied, and Carl Yastrzemski hit a double to make the score 5-4. I was on deck and the fans were fired up. Then I laced a base hit up the middle which scored Captain Carl to tie the game. The fans gave me my first standing ovation which sent chills through my body.

JEFF NEWMAN

My advice to someone seeking a career in professional baseball would be to first get as much education as possible. Pro baseball doesn't last forever and you want to be prepared for your total life not just your life in pro sports. Also, commit yourself totally to your decision to become a professional ballplayer. Don't ever let anyone say you didn't give it your all. Try as hard as you can to be the best.

Minor League Review

Left-handed-hitting first baseman Pat Dodson slammed a career-high 16 HR in 114 games at Pawtucket in 1984. Dodson played in the International League All-Star Game in his first year in AAA. He was a sixth-round pick by the Red Sox in the 1980 June draft. Sam Nattile hit .315 in 119 games for New Britain last summer, led the Eastern League in doubles (34), and was third with 78 RBI and in average. He was the ninth choice of the Red Sox in the 1982 June draft. In 1981 Nattile topped the Cape Cod League with a record .443 average. RHP John Mitchell was 16-9 for Winter Haven, led the Florida State League with 183.2 IP, and was second in wins and with 109 strikeouts. He graduated from Overton H.S. in Nashville, TN in 1983 and was the Red Sox' eighth pick that June. In 1984 second baseman Chris Cannizzaro, Jr. hit .297 in 122 games at Winter Haven, seventh best in the Florida State League. Chris graduated from Patrick Henry H.S. in San Diego, CA and attended San Diego State U. where he was an All-American selection in 1982. His father was a catcher for 13 years in the major leagues. Jose Birriel was a 1984 All-Star first baseman for Winter Haven. He led the Florida State League first basemen in every defensive category and was second overall in the league with 16 HR and 12 game-winning RBI. Birriel hit .351 with 56 RBI in 59 games at Elmira in 1983. Outfielder Dana Williams led the Florida State League with a .327 average and 167 hits at Winter Haven and was second with 213 total bases. Williams stole 18 bases and was named to the All-Star team. He was signed by the Red Sox as a free agent in 1983 after graduating from Davidson H.S. in Mobile, AL. For the second straight year Rey Quinonez was his league's All-Star shortstop. Rey hit .279 at Winston-Salem, led the Carolina League with 30 doubles, and topped the league's shortstops in almost every defensive category. Quinonez had 47 extra-base hits and stole 14 bases. Steve Lyons was named to the final International League All-Star team after he hit .268 in 131 games with 17 HR and 62 RBI, plus 35 stolen bases. Lyons was in 112 games at third base and ranked third in the Red Sox' minor league system in steals and HR. He stole 136 bases in four minor league seasons. Marc Sullivan did most of the catching for Pawtucket in his first full AAA season. He hit 15 HR with 63 RBI in 116 games and was excellent defensively as the PawSox won the International League playoffs. Marc spent the final two weeks of 1984 with the Red Sox. In 1984 RHP Charlie Mitchell was in AAA for the first time and responded with a 10-4 record and 15 saves in 37 games for Pawtucket. Charlie, the Red Sox' fourth pick in the 1982

January draft, allowed only 48 hits and 14 walks in 59.2 innings. He was recalled by the Red Sox on August 8 and spent the rest of the season in the majors. RHP Mitch Johnson had a solid 11-10 record and a 2.89 ERA for AA New Britain. Mitch earned the club's Most Popular Player Award for his pitching prowess, cooperation, and attitude he displayed with the press and fans. He tied for the most complete games (seven) in the Sox' minor league system and was rated among the top 10 major league prospects in the Eastern League. In 1984 Rob Woodward was 10-12 at New Britain with 100 strikeouts in 166 innings. The 22-year-old RHP tied for the Eastern League lead with 27 starts and was fifth in innings pitched. The W. Lebanon, NH native was the Red Sox' third pick in the 1981 June draft. Tommy McCarthy was a top relief pitcher at New Britain in his first AA season. McCarthy, 23, was 8-5 with eight saves in 38 games and did not allow a HR the entire season. The RHP from Plymouth, MA was a seventh-round selection by the Red Sox in the 1979 June draft. Sam Horn had his best pro year in 1984 at Winston-Salem. The 6'5", left-handed first baseman slammed 21 HR with 89 RBI and had a .313 average in 127 games. Horn, 21, led the Carolina League with a .538 slugging percentage and was third in batting average, on-base percentage, and RBI. Hard-hitting Mike Greenwell made a successful switch from third base to left field in mid-season and still managed to hit .306 with 16 HR and 84 RBI for Winston-Salem. Greenwell, 21, was third in the league with 222 total bases and struck out just once every 11.4 at bats, second best among Carolina League regular players. Mike was the Red Sox' sixth pick in the 1982 June draft. Steve Ellsworth finished 13-8 with a 3.29 ERA for Winston-Salem, and was 1-1 in three starts when he was promoted to AA New Britain late in the year. The 6'8" RHP made quite a comeback after a 1-11 record in 1983 at Winter Haven. His dad, LHP Dick, was with the Red Sox in 1968-69 during a 13-year major league career. Hustling second baseman Mike Goff hit .296 with 12 HR and 51 RBI in 65 games at Elmira in his first pro season. Mike was a 21st-round pick last June after playing for the U. of Alabama at Birmingham where he was All-Conference in 1983-84. He graduated from Davidson H.S. in Mobile, AL in 1980. Tary Scott, 21, led the NYP League in 1984 in intentional walks and was third in game-winning RBI. He hit .288 with 10 HR for Elmira in 57 games. Scott, a right-handed-hitting first baseman, graduated from David Crockett H.S. in Jonesboro, TN and was the Red Sox' seventh-round pick in the 1984 January draft.

Jean R. Yawkey
President

Jean R. Yawkey is a general partner and in her 10th year as Red Sox president. The widow of Tom Yawkey, she succeeded him as president after his death in 1976. Mrs. Yawkey, a Red Sox enthusiast, attends most home games in her familiar rooftop box, where for years she watched by her husband's side. As Jean Hollander, she grew up in Freeport, Long Island, before becoming Mrs. Tom Yawkey in 1944 at Georgetown, SC.

Mrs. Yawkey was active with the Red Cross during World War II. She has long been associated with New England's Jimmy Fund/Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. For the past 13 years, Mrs. Yawkey has been active in Tara Hall, a nondenomination home and school for boys in South Carolina. She is also a trustee of the Yawkey Foundation. It supports a number of institutions and projects including the 40,000-acre Tom Yawkey Wildlife Center willed to the state of South Carolina by Mr. Yawkey. She is a director of the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, NY, the first woman to be elected a director of baseball's famed museum.

Haywood C. Sullivan
Chief Executive Officer/Chief Operating Officer

Haywood C. Sullivan is the Red Sox chief executive officer/chief operating officer. He was named to that position on June 5, 1984 after being executive vice-president and general manager in charge of baseball matters from October, 1977. He was also a principal in the group which purchased the club from the Yawkey Estate in May, 1978. Sullivan is a baseball success story. A one-time catcher, he rose from dugout to ownership of the team. He was a three-sport star at Dothan (AL) High School and was All-Conference in baseball and football at the University of Florida. A top pro prospect as both a quarterback and a catcher, Sullivan signed with the Red Sox on June 15, 1952.

Sullivan is a member of the major leagues' Restructuring Committee, Long-Range Planning Committee, and Special Considerations Committee. He served on the majors' Executive Council for four years. He is also a trustee of the Jimmy Fund.

Edward G. (Buddy) LeRoux, Jr.
General Partner, Administration

Edward G. (Buddy) LeRoux, Jr. is the Red Sox general partner in charge of the club's administration and business matters. He was named to that position in October, 1977 and assembled the group which purchased the club from the Yawkey Estate in May, 1978. LeRoux is one of baseball's more remarkable stories. Like Sullivan, he advanced from dugout to team ownership. Buddy was the Red Sox trainer from 1966-74, including the "Impossible Dream" pennant-winning year (1967). Previously, he had been trainer of the Boston Celtics from 1958-66, through eight consecutive world championships. In addition to his administrative accomplishments at Fenway Park, LeRoux has long been active in both the health and real estate fields. Buddy is founder and president of New England Rehabilitation Hospital in Woburn, MA and a trustee of the Jimmy Fund. He is also a member of the President's Committee on the Handicapped, the President's Committee on Physical Fitness, and the Governor's Committee on Physical Fitness.

James L. (Lou) Gorman
Vice-President, General Manager

James L. (Lou) Gorman was named vice-president and director of baseball operations on February 1, 1984. On June 5, 1984, Gorman was promoted to vice-president and general manager. As general manager of the Red Sox, Gorman handles all matters relating to the operation of the major league ball club on the field as well as the overall responsibility for the procurement and development of player talent within the organization.

Gorman, originally from Providence, RI, spent 3½ years with the Mets as vice-president and director of baseball operations before joining the Red Sox. His major league baseball career began as the assistant farm and scouting director for the Baltimore Orioles in 1963. From 1968-80, he held various positions in the Royals and Mariners organizations. Lou serves on the Major League Amateur Study Committee, the Major League's College and High School Committee, and is also a member of the Board of Directors of the Major League Scouting Bureau. He recently retired as captain in the Naval Reserve after 34 years of service.

That's a lot of fly balls, ground balls, pinch hits, pitchouts, line drives, lineups and excitement to keep on top of.

But then, for over 25 years, Digital has been helping people, departments and entire companies work more efficiently.

It's this kind of expertise that enables us to design computer systems for many of America's largest corporations.

Red Sox Radio-TV

Red Sox fans all over New England are again tuning into baseball action in 1985 on the Campbell-Red Sox Baseball Radio Network, WSBK-TV, and NESN Cable TV.

TV 38 and its New England network is in its 11th year of Red Sox telecasts. The last four years have included veteran Ned Martin and former Red Sox catcher Bob Montgomery as the announcing team.

Martin has been a local fan favorite since he joined Curt Gowdy in 1961 on the Red Sox broadcasts. He has done radio, as well as TV, for 25 years. A graduate of Duke University and a World War II marine corps veteran, Ned did minor league games on radio before joining the Red Sox. In 1979 he moved from radio to TV 38.

Montgomery has blended well with Martin in his primary role as game analyst. Bob joined the Red Sox' minor league system in 1962 and came to the major leagues late in 1970. His playing career was shortened by an arm injury that caused his retirement in March of 1980. Before joining TV 38, Montgomery did radio work for two years including some Red Sox game announcing.

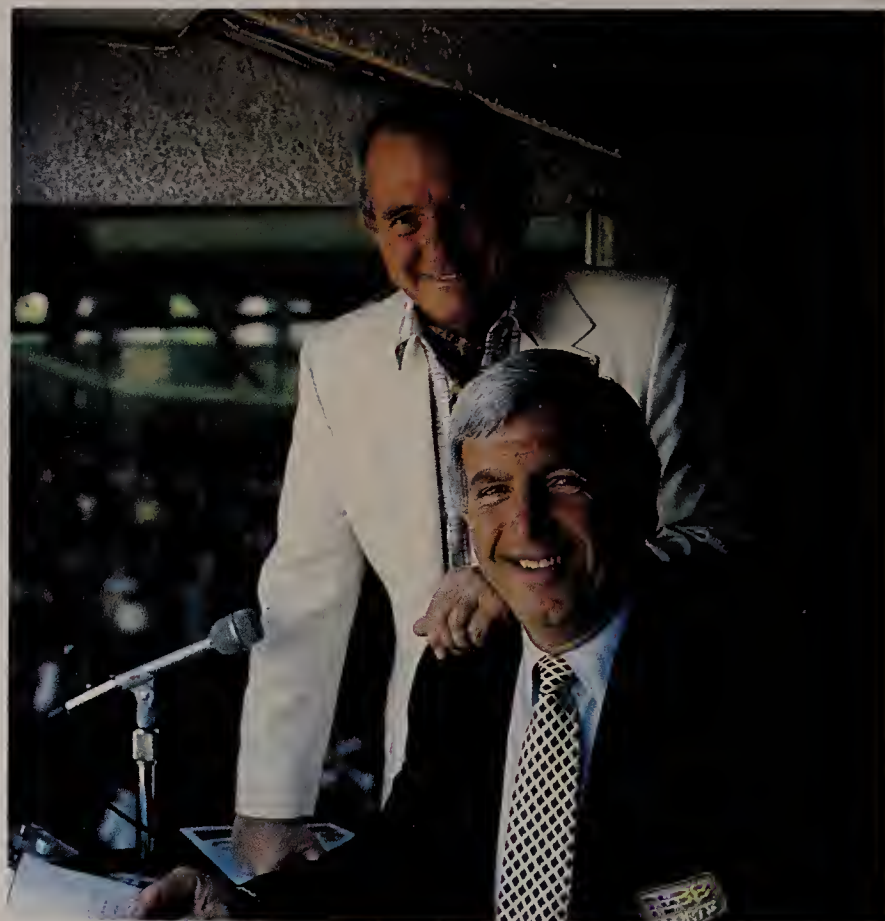

Red Sox games are on cable TV for the second year. The New England Sports Network (NESN) is telecasting 86 regular-season games with Martin and Montgomery as the announcing team.

NESN rebroadcasts each of its Red Sox games as a convenience for subscribers who may have missed the live telecast. Evening games are rebroadcast at 11:30 p.m. while afternoon games are shown again at 7:30 p.m.

Affable Ken Coleman and diligent Joe Castiglione are the radio combination for the third year. WPLM AM-FM in Plymouth is the flagship station for the network that comprises approximately 70 stations. The Red Sox and Campbell Sports signed a four-year contract extension in February.

Coleman, a native of Quincy, MA, has been a Red Sox radio and TV announcer for 16 years. Ken's long broadcasting background covers over 30 years that includes announcing with the Cleveland Indians and Cincinnati Reds. He also did NFL football for the Cleveland Browns and college football for Ohio State. Ken is the coordinator for donor relations for the Jimmy Fund/Dana Farber Cancer Institute.

Castiglione is also a native New Englander from Hamden, CT. Prior to joining the Campbell-Red Sox Network, Joe did play-by-play of Indians games on cable TV in 1982 after a similar position with the Milwaukee Brewers in 1981. In 1979 he began his major league career on the Indians commercial TV network, and then became the club's backup radio man the next year.

It pays to get physical.

To Danny Doyle, the memory is as sharp as the wind that blows down the streets of his Stillwater, OK home on a winter day.

"The first time I saw Johnny Bench," recalled the man who scouts Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas, and Colorado for the Boston Red Sox, "he was a sophomore in high school.

"You didn't need to be a great scout to know he was someone special."

But you did need to be a scout to have the ability to turn that sophomore into a player for the Boston Red Sox. And that's what Doyle wanted to do.

The factors were there: Bench wanted to play for the Red Sox. He liked Doyle, a former major league catcher for Boston who had become close to the Bench family and was a regular fishing buddy of Bench's father.

In 1965, Bench's senior year at Binger (OK) High School, baseball had instituted the draft of high-school and college players, ending amateur players' freedom to sign with the organization of their choice.

"I was still confident of us drafting Johnny because I would say at least one third of the teams in baseball weren't even aware of him," recalled Doyle.

When the Cincinnati Reds did draft Bench on the second round, the Bench family was upset.

"They weren't going to sign, but finally relented when Johnny was chomping at the bit. He just wanted to play ball.

"That was the first year the draft broke my heart."

Scouting is the hardest easiest-looking job in sports.

Baseball scouts sport deep tans, drive large company-owned automobiles (a red Ford Mercury Marquis is this year's Red Sox model), and watch baseball for a living.

SCOUTING

~the major league talent search

by Tom Shea

But there's more to it than that. If one must kiss a lot of frogs to find a prince, scouts see thousands of players before they discover the next generation of Jim Rices, Dwight Evanses, and Wade Boggses.

They weed out future superstars through lots of hard work and many miles, making contacts with high-school and college coaches, local newspapers, and former ballplayers, all the while looking for tips about promising teenage players.

For scouts, the baseball season begins in January, when they send for schedules and plot their courses of viewing prospects as many times as possible in the spring, before the all-important June free-agent draft.

The scouts drive an average of 35,000 miles a season, equipped with a supply of lawn chairs, notebooks, and some form of tobacco, usually cigars or chewing tobacco.

Also making the trips are the essential prospect cards on which scouts rate players' performances for future evaluation.

Position players are graded on their arms, running ability, hitting, power, and fielding.

Less sophisticated, but not less important, is the process of getting to know the player, an aspect of scouting that holds special meaning for many in the trade.

"In the old days (before the draft), I'd get so close to a kid, I knew how much his family owed on their mortgage," recalled Sox New England scout Bill Enos.

The process is an essential prerequisite to recommending a player to the Red Sox who try to draft, sign, and nurture him through the minor league system until he is ready for the major league roster.

The scouting process might be done to the letter, but that doesn't guarantee storybook endings. Often, a scout's hard work on the road is stifled all too quickly.

"The frustration comes when the top eight guys you recommend are selected in the draft even before the Red Sox get to select," said Joe Stephenson, who covers 350 high schools, 26 four-year colleges, and 32 junior colleges in the Los Angeles area. "Six months of work, and what do you have to show for it?"

Even if a player is drafted and signed, roughly eight of 100 players signed make the major leagues.

"A scout's job—in a nutshell—is to see a 17-year-old boy and project him four or five years down the road into the major leagues," said Red Sox scouting director Eddie Kasko. "They see them sometimes on poor fields with aluminum bats and out of position (scouts saw Dwight Evans as a third baseman/pitcher, Rich Gedman as a first baseman/pitcher), and have to make that kind of determination."

The Red Sox employ 23 full-time scouts and belong to the Major League Scouting Bureau, an organization which provides added scouting reports.

But the team's scouts have done fine on their own. The Red Sox regularly have more than 30 home-grown players on their major league 40-man roster.

In the past three years, the Red Sox have ranked in the top three organizations in producing major league talent.

"When a Jerry Remy was injured, we had a Marty Barrett to replace him at second base," reminded Sox general manager Lou Gorman, whose career has been in the player development branch of baseball with Baltimore, Kansas City, Seattle, and the New York Mets. "Another example of our farm system at work was Jackie Gutierrez taking over at shortstop when we needed him."

"Marty spent four years in the minors and Jackie six. A long time ago a scout started them on their road to Fenway Park."

What makes a good scout?

"Dedication and patience," said Kasko, who spent 11 years in the major leagues as a utility infielder and four years as Red Sox manager before becoming scouting director.

In the past, the Red Sox have run pre-draft psychological word tests of top prospects to spot any tendencies—good or bad. Kasko decided to have some of the scouts take the test.

"Time and time again the traits of dedication and patience came through," said Kasko.

Ed Kenney, the Red Sox vice-president in charge of player development, believes common sense, judgment, and courage make a good scout.

"Anyone can see a guy who hits a home run has power, but it takes a scout to get past the obvious and sort it all out," said Kenney. "It takes courage to recommend a guy and stick by a choice, and it takes courage not to recommend a player just for the sake of recommending."

"Experience," answered Joe Stephenson. "I think I've played on every level of baseball ever created."

"I saw Yogi Berra play pro ball when he was 18 and you knew he would make it, same with guys like Stan Musial and Gene Woodling."

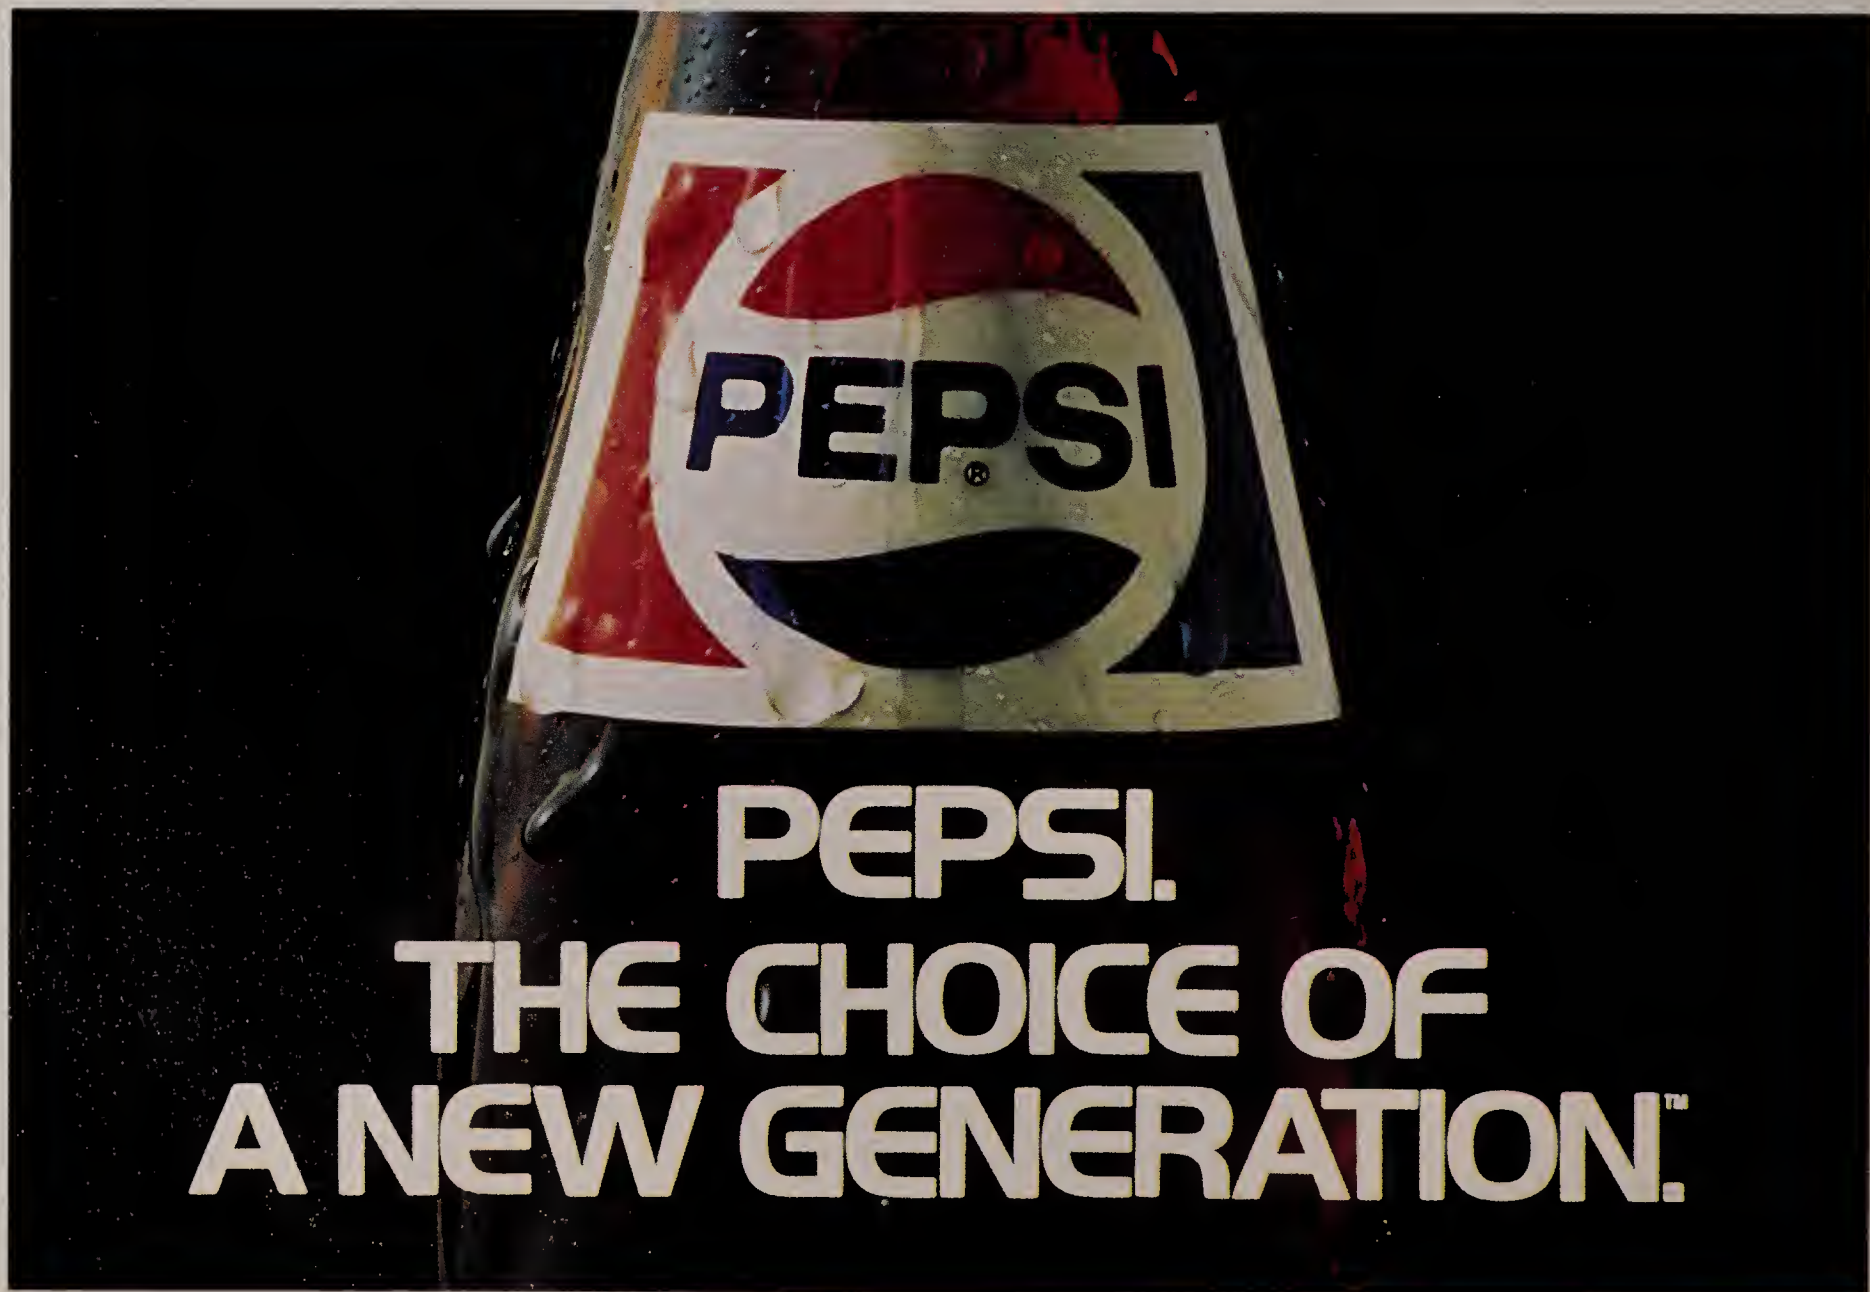

"After a while the talent is obvious to you, and then you watch for his determination, desire, and his reaction when things go wrong."

Scouts are not only the lifeblood of an organization, but also the ambassador to the masses.

They bring the eyes and ears of major league baseball into your hometown.

They are a few good men looking for a few good men.

1975 REMEMBERED

It's been 10 years since the baseball world witnessed and experienced one of the greatest events of all time—The 1975 World Series. The memories of that series and the contributions of its participants, the Boston Red Sox and Cincinnati Reds, are solidly etched in our minds.

In the following pages, we will take a look back at the 1975 Red Sox season, A.L. Playoffs, and World Series, and relive some of the highlights of each.

What Do You Remember Most From 1975?

Most memorable moments from the season —

The most memorable event during the '75 season came in late July when we swept a doubleheader from the Yankees at Shea Stadium to go eight games up. A close second — winning the division after Jim Palmer said we would fold again just like in '74.

Third most memorable — playing 158 of the 160 games that year.

Rick Burleson, SS

Hitting a home run against Jim Palmer and the Orioles to break up a 0-0 tie. We went on to win 2-0 as Luis Tiant pitched a magnificent game. The showdown was in late September, and the Orioles were breathing down our necks just four games out. It was one of the most exciting games I have ever played in.

Rico Petrocelli, 3B

My third season with the Red Sox went so fast that it's hard to remember. We had a great team. All I can think of is the great seasons that Lynn and Rice had, and Tiant in the whirlpool with a cigar. I do remember hitting a grand slam off Joe Decker on June 6. We won 13-10 over the Twins. I have the grand slam ball on my mantle.

Dwight Evans, RF

I think winning three out of four games against the Yankees in New York in late July was a high point for me. It was such a big series at the time.

Dick Drago, RHP

The day the pennant was cinched.

Johnny Pesky, Coach

Seeing two fine rookies (Rice, Lynn) have outstanding years.

Stan Williams, Coach

Playing in Detroit the final week of the season, and being hit on my left hand by a pitch from Vern Ruhle. That moment I knew my hand was broken, and I would miss the chance to play in a possible World Series.

Jim Rice, LF

Getting three hits off Jim “Catfish” Hunter (in June) and barely missing hitting for the cycle against the Royals (in July).

Cecil Cooper, 1B

The catch made by Lynn in Shea Stadium vs. the Yankees capping off a sweep of a Sunday doubleheader, putting the Yankees to sleep.

Bob Montgomery, C

Playing for the Boston Red Sox was the only thing that was good in my career. Of course it was because Mr. Yawkey was the greatest person and owner I ever met . . . It was always great to see him in the clubhouse.

Bernie Carbo, OF

Near no-hitter in Milwaukee; nine straight wins; comeback player of the year; top winning pitcher on Red Sox; 19 regular-season wins; one playoff win; one World Series win (sixth game).

Rick Wise, RHP

Beating Jim Palmer and the Orioles on June 30, 1975, and Tony Muser doubling off the side of my head.

Dick Pole, RHP

(Ed. note: In the ninth inning, Pole was hit by a line drive and suffered a fractured right cheek bone. He was sidelined until September 1.)

My most memorable moment for the 1975 baseball season was a long one which stretched from the first day of August to the last day of the season, commonly known as the pennant drive. Preparing each day knowing that you were going to win — when the most popular word in August was “choke” — could never be surpassed.

Denny Doyle, 2B

That night in Tulsa, OK when my manager, Ken Boyer, told me I was traded to the Boston Red Sox was the beginning of every ballplayer's dream: from the minors, to a pennant contender, to the World Series, in the best sports city in the world.

Jim Willoughby, RHP

Most memorable moments from the Playoffs/Series

In one game during the playoffs, I stole second and third base. In the World Series, my most memorable moment would have to be throwing Pete Rose out at home plate.

Juan Beniquez, OF

The Playoffs — Tiant winning the first game; Drago getting the last out in Oakland (game three).
The Series — The rain that delayed the Series; In game six, Fred Lynn's and Bernie Carbo's home runs. Then in the bottom of the 12th, the home run I hit off Pat Darcy to win the game 7-6 and send us to game seven.

Carlton Fisk, C

The Fisk-Armbrister collision sparked major controversy. Courtesy of Heinz Kluetmeier/Sports Illustrated.

Bernie Carbo's home run in game six to tie the game and Carlton Fisk's to win it were big highlights.

Darrell Johnson, Mgr.

The most memorable moment for me was getting the save in the last game of the playoffs vs. Oakland. I remember jumping into Cecil Cooper's arms after the final out. Also, Bernie Carbo's three-run homer in game six of the series.

Dick Drago, RHP

In the playoffs, my offensive and defensive performances in the three games. In the World Series, being part of one of the greatest World Series of all time.

Carl Yastrzemski, 1B

In game six, the home run which tied the game will always be most memorable, and my present to the Boston fans.

Bernie Carbo, OF

The Playoffs — Yaz cutting off a possible double or triple on Reggie Jackson.

The World Series — Carbo's home run to tie the game in the sixth game.

Johnny Pesky, Coach

I pitched in three games in the World Series, and the Red Sox gave me an opportunity to prove myself.

Roger Moret, LHP

My most memorable came in Cincinnati when my name was put on the scoreboard and I was announced for my first World Series at bat.

Rick Miller, OF

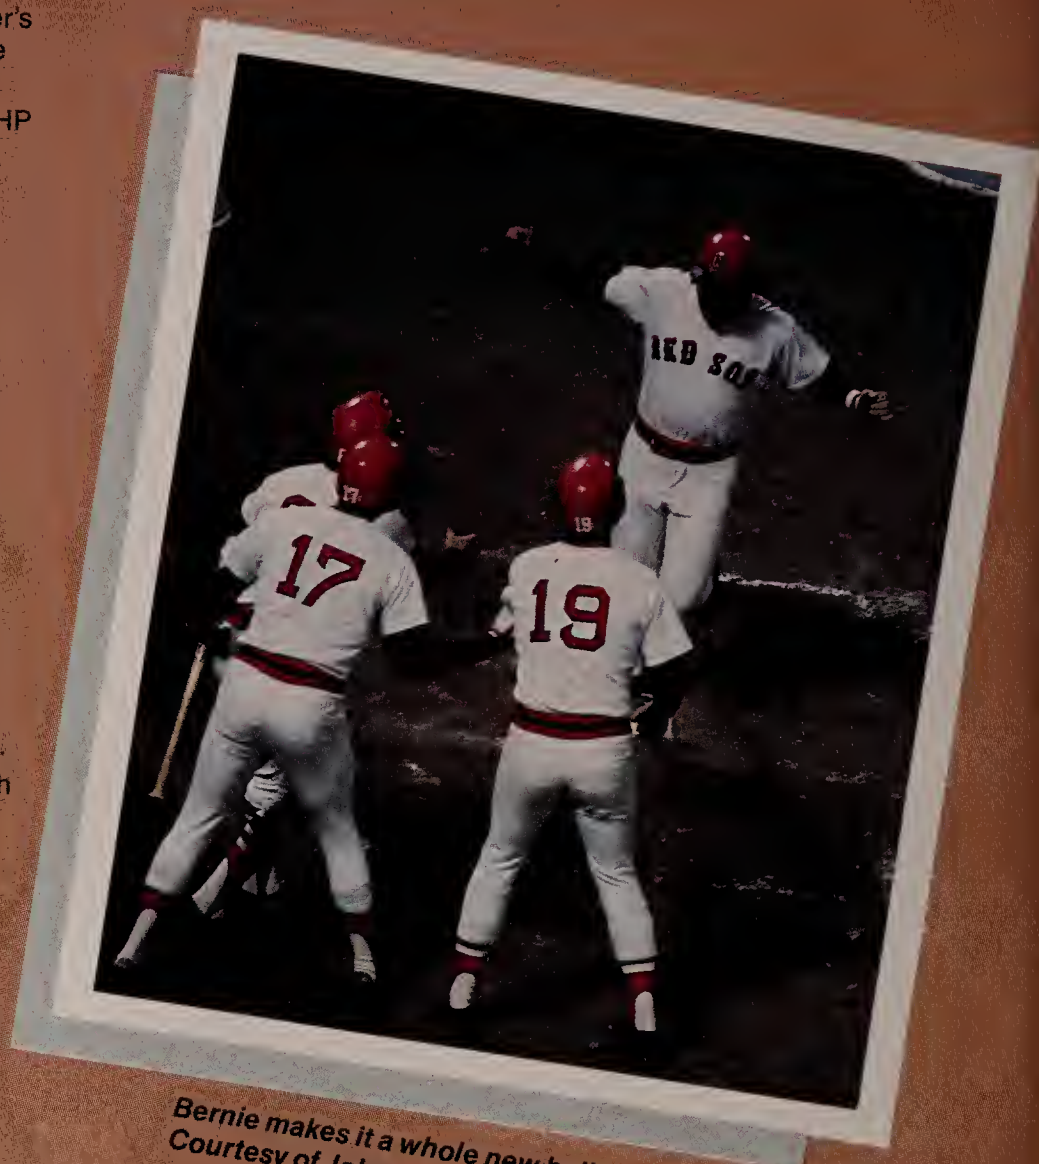

One of my most memorable moments of the playoffs was beating Oakland three straight games. Also, pitching one inning in the World Series was a thrill.

Diego Segui, RHP

World Series, game six, Bernie Carbo's game-tying home run into the seats in center field, sending the game into extra innings, setting the stage for Carlton Fisk's dramatic heroics in the 12th.

A Capsule Look at the 1975 A.L. Playoffs/World Series

Playoffs — Red Sox vs. Athletics

Game One — Oct. 4 at Boston; Tiant vs. Holtzman; Red Sox win 7-1. A's commit four errors. Tiant (WP) strikes out eight; Holtzman (LP).

Game Two — Oct. 5 at Boston; Cleveland vs. Blue; Red Sox win 6-3. R. Jackson hits two-run HR for A's; Yaz (three-run HR) and Petrocelli (HR) lead Sox. Moret (WP); Drago (S); Fingers (LP).

Game Three — Oct. 7 at Oakland; Wise vs. Holtzman; Red Sox win 5-3, clinch Pennant. Yaz makes great defensive play on Jackson in eighth inning. Good relief performance by Drago to save game for Wise; Holtzman (LP).

World Series — Red Sox vs. Reds

Game One — Oct. 11 at Boston; Tiant vs. Gullett; Red Sox win 6-0. Red Sox score six runs in the seventh inning after superb pitching duel between Tiant (WP) and Gullett (LP). Tiant pitches five-hitter and also singles.

Game Two — Oct. 12 at Boston; Lee vs. Billingham; Reds win 3-2. Red Sox hold 2-1 lead into the top of the ninth inning. Excellent pitching by Lee (LP) who had allowed only four hits entering the ninth inning of this rain-soaked game. Reds score two runs in the ninth (with two outs) to win; Eastwick (WP).

Game Three — Oct. 14 at Cincinnati; Wise vs. Nolan; Reds win 6-5 in 10 innings. After trailing 5-1, Red Sox rally in the ninth to tie the game on Evans' HR. Controversial! Fisk-Armbrister collision in the 10th is ruled "no interference" by umpire Larry Barnett. Reds score run in the 10th to win.

Home runs by Bench, Concepcion, and Geronimo for Reds, and Fisk, Carbo, and Evans for Sox; Eastwick (WP); Willoughby (LP).

Game Four — Oct. 15 at Cincinnati; Tiant vs. Norman; Red Sox win 5-4; Series tied at two. Tiant hurls 163 pitches in victory. Sox score five runs in the fourth inning. Running catch by Lynn in the ninth (with two runners on), for second out, helps save the game; Norman (LP).

Game Five — Oct. 16 at Cincinnati; Cleveland vs. Gullett; Reds win 6-2. Two Perez HR for four RBI, and Gullett's pitching (five hits, seven strikeouts) beat Red Sox; Eastwick (S); Cleveland (LP).

Game Six — Oct. 21 at Boston; Tiant vs. Nolan; Red Sox win 7-6 in 12 innings. After three days of rain, play resumes. Lynn hits three-run HR in the first inning. Reds tie score in the fifth. Reds score two more runs in the seventh and lead 6-3 in the eighth on a Geronimo HR. Bernie Carbo's two-out, three-run HR in the eighth ties the game. Sensational catch by Evans in front of the right-field seats thwarts Joe Morgan's attempt for HR in the 11th. Fisk hits HR in the 12th to win the game; Wise (WP); Darcy (LP).

Game Seven — Oct. 22 at Boston; Lee vs. Gullett; Reds win game and Series 4-3. Sox score three runs in the third inning, two on bases-loaded walks, Reds score two runs in the sixth and one in the seventh to tie the score. Reds score final run of the Series in the ninth on a two-out, bloop single to center field by Joe Morgan; Burton (LP); Carroll (WP); McEnaney (S).
